1. As Future Gen's doors are manufactured using COLORBOND® steel, you may also be eligible for the BlueScope COLORBOND® steel warranty, in addition to this warranty.

3. Oil-canning (information)

1. Undulations or distortions (known as oil-canning) associated with the manufacturing process and surface reflectivity of metal cladding may from time to time be visible – depending on factors including viewing angle, ambient temperature and lighting conditions.
2. An acceptable level of oil-canning is not a defect. The Australian Garage Door Association considers that an acceptable level of oil-canning is where the distortion over any 150mm distance is not greater than 1mm.
3. For further information about oil-canning including how it is measured, please consult the Association's Guide to Visual Inspection of Garage Doors.

4. Operating noises (information)

1. It is normal for your door, especially if a larger door, to produce operating noises including creaking when opened and closed due to the movement of its components.
2. Regular cleaning and lubrication of components (including guides, roller wheels and bearer plates) is essential for minimising operating noises and should only be carried out by Future Gen or an approved service partner to ensure the door is thoroughly serviced using only quality approved products.
3. Non-approved lubricants can impede door operation and accelerate wear by providing inadequate lubrication or promoting particulate accumulation.
4. To book a service, or if operating noises have become unusual, please visit www.FutureGen.com.au/garage-door-service.

5. Door Cleaning (information)

1. As set out below, this warranty does not cover corrosion or surface coating degradation due to causes or effects beyond the reasonable control of Future Gen, including failure to remove grime, chemicals and atmospheric pollutants. To preserve finishes and limit build-up of compounds that may initiate corrosion, we strongly recommend regular washing of the exterior of doors in accordance with BlueScope® Technical Bulletin TB - 4.
